About the role

The primary purpose of the role is to:

A physiotherapist (third year of practice onwards) provides safe and clinically effective patient/client assessment and intervention, within a specific clinical area with a development of more in depth knowledge and skills.

This role provides physiotherapy services to acute surgery, covering patients under vascular, general surgery, colorectal, upper gastrointestinal, hepatobiliary, ENT, urology, obstetrics and gynaecology. Clinical skills are required across all conditions commonly presenting to the clinical speciality, as well as broad experience across inpatient care. The physiotherapist will mentor and support rotational staff, and undergraduate students, to develop clinical skills, as well as routinely supporting colleagues in other clinical areas as the service need arises.

This role is required to undertake shifts as part of the weekend and on call out of hours service, covering Wellington Regional Hospital, adults and paediatrics. It is a requirement of the role to train, support and develop therapists to work in the speciality area of the weekend and on call service.

Work in other areas as identified, or following a reasonable request, in order to support the organisation in managing safe patient care and maintaining service delivery.
